CONSIDER PLANS FOR NEW CANNERY

Increased production of early summer fruits in the Salt River valley must, of necessity, result in the advent of the canning industry next season, in the opinion of many growers of the community.

Production this year is the largest in history and it has only been through a series of fortunate circumstances that valley growers have been saved financial losses, it is declared. Especially is this true with apricots.

It is understood that the largest growers of the valley are already considering plans for the establishment of a cannery for the next season's crop, which will be several hundred tons larger than this year's crop, barring unfavorable weather.

Hundreds of young trees in the valley are just now beginning to bear, and in another year will be producing maximum crops. The supply this year was many times the local demand with a result that growers were obliged to resort to shipping to outside markets. Smaller growers considered, for a time, drying methods, but this was abandoned when another outlet was found.

Experiences of this season, it is thought, will stimulate activities for the establishment of a cannery, where the entire valley crop could well be utilized. Other fruits could also be canned.

No definite action toward the establishment of a cannery has yet been taken but growers realize the necessity for some outlet other than shipping.

WILL DEMONSTRATE FIRST AID METHODS

In the national drive inaugurated by the American Red Cross, to spread knowledge of the Schaefer method of resuscitation, boy scouts in California, Nevada and Arizona, will give demonstrations today at fire stations before firemen and policemen of the city.

Interest in the demonstration is increased by the announcement that the third resuscitation commission of the medical department of the United States army, declares against all mechanical respirators and in favor of the Schaefer method above all other methods.

The Mission of Swift & Company

Swift & Company has become one of the large businesses of the world through continuing to meet the growing needs of a nation and a world.

Society has a right to ask how the increasing responsibilities and opportunities for usefulness which go with such growth are being used by the men who direct its affairs—and the men have the right to answer:

- To promote the production of live stock and perishables and increase the food supply;
- To reach more people with more and better meat;
- To make a fair competitive profit, in order to reimburse the 25,000 shareholders for the use of their capital, and to provide for the future development of the business;
- To reduce to a minimum the costs of preparing and distributing meat and to divide the benefits of efficiency with producer and consumer;
- To live and let live, winning greater business only through greater usefulness, with injury to nothing but incompetency, inefficiency, and waste; to deal justly, fairly, and frankly with all mankind.

These are the purposes and motives of the men who direct the policies and practices of Swift & Company.
